Michael Anderson
Chief Investment Officer

At Hi-Line Capital Management, our intrinsic-value philosophy and decision-making principles drive how we approach investing and provide guard rails for thinking during periods of extreme uncertainty and volatility. Our piece, Foundational Decision-Making Principles, details the seven pillars of our decision-making process and its critical function in long-term success and rationality.

ABOUT HI-LINE CAPITAL MANAGEMENT

Hi-Line Capital Management, LLC ("HLCM"), based in Watertown, SD, provides investment management and advisory services for institutional and individual clients. The firm was founded in July 2009, became a registered investment advisor (RIA) with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission ("SEC") in March 2010.

TEMPERAMENT BEATS INTELLECT IN INVESTING

October 2023

"In the short run, the market is a voting machine but in the long run, it is a weighing machine" -- Ben Graham

Temperament beats intellect is the long-term truth regarding investment success.

Temperament includes the ability to;
1. How to think about markets
2. Controlling the emotions of fear and greed by reacting rationally to short-term events.
3. Thinking long-term when assessing the economics of a security or business

The following will further expand upon the necessary skill of how to think about markets.

The underlying intrinsic value of desirable businesses (or real asset, bond, etc.) is far more stable than the price. Price includes the collective emotions of the crowd making it susceptible to wider fluctuation. The following visual should further aid in seeing the concept described collectively by Graham and Buffett.

Proper investment temperament will help protect investors from themselves by executing decisions rooted in successful investing principles.

HI-LINE CAPITAL MANAGEMENT, LLC
1200 33rd St. SE, Suite #309
WATERTOWN, SD 57201

EMAIL: INFO@HI-LINECAPITAL.COM
PHONE: 605.878.0897
WWW.HI-LINECAPITAL.COM

Hi-Line Capital Management, LLC is a Registered Investment Advisor. Advisory services are only offered to clients or prospective clients where Hi-Line and its representatives are properly licensed or exempt from licensure. No Investment strategy or risk management technique can guarantee returns or eliminate risk in any market environment. All investments include a risk of loss that clients should be prepared to bear. Principal risks of Hi-Line strategies are disclosed in the ADV Part 2A.

Michael Anderson
Chief Investment Officer

At Hi-Line Capital Management, our intrinsic-value philosophy and decision-making principles drive how we approach investing and provide guard rails for thinking during periods of extreme uncertainty and volatility. Our piece, Foundational Decision-Making Principles, details the seven pillars of our decision-making process and its critical function in long-term success and rationality.

ABOUT HI-LINE CAPITAL MANAGEMENT

Hi-Line Capital Management, LLC ("HLCM"), based in Watertown, SD, provides investment management and advisory services for institutional and individual clients. The firm was founded in July 2009, became a registered investment advisor (RIA) with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission ("SEC") in March 2010.

TEMPERAMENT BEATS INTELLECT IN INVESTING CONT'D

October 2023

In the 1987 letter to Berkshire Hathaway shareholders, Warren Buffett best describes a concept regarding how best to think and react to prices pitched daily by "Mr. Market". The following excerpt comes directly from the letter and remains very applicable 35 years later.

Even though the business that the two of you own may have economic characteristics that are stable, Mr. Market's quotations will be anything but. For, sad to say, the poor fellow has incurable emotional problems. At times he feels euphoric and can see only the favorable factors affecting the business. When in that mood, he names a very high buy-sell price because he fears that you will snap up his interest and rob him of imminent gains. At other times he is depressed and can see nothing but trouble ahead for both the business and the world. On these occasions, he will name a very low price, since he is terrified that you will unload your interest on him.

Mr. Market has another endearing characteristic: He doesn't mind being ignored. If his quotation is uninteresting to you today, he will be back with a new one tomorrow. Transactions are strictly at your option. Under these conditions, the more manic-depressive his behavior, the better for you.

But, like Cinderella at the ball, you must heed one warning or everything will turn into pumpkins and mice: Mr. Market is there to serve you, not to guide you. It is his pocketbook, not his wisdom, that you will find useful. If he shows up some day in a particularly foolish mood, you are free to either ignore him or to take advantage of him, but it will be disastrous if you fall under his influence. Indeed, if you aren't certain that you understand and can value your business far better than Mr. Market, you don't belong in the game. As they say in poker, "If you've been in the game 30 minutes and you don't know who the patsy is, you're the patsy."

Ben's Mr. Market allegory may seem out-of-date in today's investment world, in which most professionals and academicians talk of efficient markets, dynamic hedging and betas. Their interest in such matters is understandable, since techniques shrouded in mystery clearly have value to the purveyor of investment advice. After all, what witch doctor has ever achieved fame and fortune by simply advising "Take two aspirins"?

The value of market esoterica to the consumer of investment advice is a different story. In my opinion, investment success will not be produced by arcane formulae, computer programs or signals flashed by the price behavior of stocks and markets. Rather an investor will succeed by coupling good business judgment with an ability to insulate his thoughts and behavior from the super-contagious emotions that swirl about the marketplace. In my own efforts to stay insulated, I have found it highly useful to keep Ben's Mr. Market concept firmly in mind.

Following Ben's teachings, Charlie and I let our marketable equities tell us by their operating results – not by their daily, or even yearly, price quotations – whether our investments are successful. The market may ignore business success for a while but eventually will confirm it. As Ben said: "In the short run, the market is a voting machine but in the long run it is a weighing machine." The speed at which a business's success is recognized, furthermore, is not that important as long as the company's intrinsic value is increasing at a satisfactory rate. In fact, delayed recognition can be an advantage: It may give us the chance to buy more of a good thing at a bargain price.

Hi-Line Capital Management, LLC is a Registered Investment Advisor. Advisory services are only offered to clients or prospective clients where Hi-Line and its representatives are properly licensed or exempt from licensure. No Investment strategy or risk management technique can guarantee returns or eliminate risk in any market environment. All investments include a risk of loss that clients should be prepared to bear. Principal risks of Hi-Line strategies are disclosed in the ADV Part 2A.